Deadly diseases

Parents urged to have their children immunised against killer conditions

By PETE MAGILL

A major health campaign is being launched after it was revealed East Lancashire parents were leaving hundreds of children exposed to childhood killers.

Disappointing child immunisation rates for conditions including meningitis, polio and diptheria, as well as measles, mumps, rubella and flu, have prompted public health officials in NHS East Lancashire to take action.

And the area's interim public health director said the health trust, doctors and paediatric experts could do more to improve Burnley, Pendle, Rossendale, Hyndburn and Ribble Valley's position.

Nearly two out of 10 youngsters have not received diptheria, tetaus and polio boosters by the age of five.

The same is estimated for the second measles, mumps and rubella shot at the same age, in the five boroughs.

Only 85 per cent of youngsters have been adequately protected against the potentially deadly pneumococcal strain of meningitis.

Just over 93 per cent of one-year-olds get their diptheria, tetanus and polio innoculations and a similar rate exists for flu and meningitis C jabs. But only 88 per cent of two-year-olds have their first MMR shot and none of the six jabs meet the government's 95 per cent target.

A national NHS support team has been in East Lancashire, evaluating the performance of immunisation teams and offering advice and guidance about improving the performance figures.

Atefa Hussain, a non-executive director of NHS East Lancashire, said: "I am concerned about childhood immunisation rates. We have not seen any improvement for six months.

"Do we need to be targetting specific areas where our performance is not high?"

Dr Sohail Bhatti, the trust's interim public health director, said there had been a four or five per cent improvement, from the third quarter of 2009-10 to the final quarter.

He said: "Hopefully we will find out what we can do better."

Film puts focus on bullying

By PETE MAGILL

A hard-hitting film tackling bullying, racism and knife crime, shot by young people had its premiere in Nelson last night.

Professional film-makers weredrafted in to ensure that 'Missed Opportunity', which also deals with alcohol abuse and anti-social behaviour, had a cinematic feel.

Around 20 young people were involved in the 15-certificate production, which aired for the first time at the ACE Centre, Cross Street, and it may be rolled out to schools.

Under the umbrella of 'Arts For Our Sake', a scheme funded by Lancashire Police and the county council's youth service, the organisers enlisted the help of Barnoldswick-based The Reverb Factory to pass on film-making techniques.

> We wanted to really push the boundaries with this project.
> BRYAN FIELDHOUSE

Andrew Gilmour, of The Reverb Factory, said: "The whole experience has proved to be a very challenging, yet rewarding one for the group.

"Having never acted in a film before, their confidence grew throughout the filming process and they should be proud of their performances and achievements."

ACTION: A scene from the film 'Missed Opportunity' which premiered last night

Many of the cast were acting novices and director Bryan Fieldhouse, from the company, who wrote and directed the piece, was impressed by their adaptability.

He said: "We wanted to really push the boundaries with this project, choosing to shoot it all in high definition, and using professional film-making techniques. This, matched with 100 per cent effort from everyone involved, has given the film the look and feel it deserved."

For the film's soundtrack, a number of Pendle bands were able to contribute to the finished article. Local musician Sam Hird reworked his track 'Forgotten' for the closing credits and the works of Revolva Head, Effluence and Michael Slevin are used to build the tension for Missed Opportunity.

There will be another chance to see the film at the Rainhall Centre, in Barnoldswick, on Friday, August 6, from 7pm.

Free swims for kids spared axe

Free swimming for youngsters across Pendle has been given a stay of execution by councillors.

But the over-60s will have to pay by the middle of October.

Under the government's free swimming scheme, councils across Lancashire and beyond were given financial help to encourage more under-16s and senior citizens to take the plunge.

But the new coalition in Whitehall announced that the scheme was being scrapped as part of the emergency budget.

PLANS: Coun Tonia Barton

Pendle said it would be ending the intiative at Nelson, Colne and West Craven pools at the start of August.

But cabinet member Coun Tonia Barton told an executive meeting there had now been a revision to the original plans.

Around £31,000 has been found from the authority's strategic budget reserve to fund free swimming for youngsters until the end of next March. But Coun Barton said that the same provision for the over-60s would be withdrawn from October 9.

"There was actually a drop in the number of adults swimming during the period of free swimming," she added.

Coun Barton said the move would guarantee the scheme for under-16s until the end of the two-year programme drawn up by the previous government.

The initiative had encouraged extra young swimmers to take up the activity, according to usage figures, she added.

Protests were launched by Liberal Democrats outside Nelson Town Hall in response to the first planned cuts.

A scheme aimed at encouraging people to walk more has won national accreditation.

Pendle Leisure Trust's 'Let's Walk' has been awarded accredited status for the second year running.

The accolade is from Walking the Way to Health, a natural England initiative. The certificate means the scheme will be recognised as a nationally evaluated project, as well as being formally recognised by health professionals.

The scheme has offered weekly guided walks through Brierfield, Nelson, Barrowford, Colne and Earby for the past seven years

Flats plans

Plans to build 17 new apartments on land off Edmund Street, Burnley, have been submitted to the council.

Riddle solved of menu lost in time

By Andrew Greaves

The mystery of a signed menu card found at a Fence pub in 1996 has been solved – after the man who put it there returned after 34 years.

Staff at the Sparrow Hawk were puzzled by the signatures on the 1976 menu card, discovered in a time capsule when the pub underwent a revamp 14 years ago.

But a chance remark by customer Ernest Howarth when he visited the pub last week rang a bell with staff who retrieved the menu from a filing cabinet in the pub's office.

Marian Bedson, who has worked at the Wheatley Lane Road pub since 1977, said: "We knew the menu had been signed by the then-landlord and landlady, Don and Marion Butterworth, and regular Janet Gardener, but we didn't know who the other three signatures belonged to until Mr Howarth came in."

The pensioner identified his own name, that of a fellow joiner Fred Taylor and another regular, Kathleen Oldham.

Mr Howarth had been part of a team from Gledhill's Joiners who were refitting the pub when he found a plastic wallet behind some wood panelling.

On closer inspection, he noted it included a programme from the play 'Mary England' being performed on the lawns in front of Towneley Hall.

He said: "The programme dated from 1910.

"I decided to put a current menu back in the hole and wasn't aware it had been found until I came back to book a table.

"It was amazing to see it."

The menu lists a ploughman's lunch at 25p – or 26p with a pickled egg.

FIND: Ernest Howarth and Marian Bedson with the menu that Mr Howarth 'hid' in the Sparrow Hawk in 1976

Andy Devanney, who has worked at the pub since 1992, said: "When one of our managers came up to the office and mentioned the menu I knew exactly what he meant because I had it in the cabinet.

"It's amazing to think that someone has come back after 34 years and managed to solve something which has been puzzling us.

"We're going to look at putting our own time capsule together and hiding it for staff in a couple of decades to find."

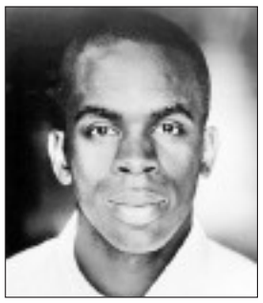
All rev-ved up about new role

Jimmy Akingbola was born in London in 1978, and honed his skills at the capital's Academy of Live and Recorded Arts. He's appeared in a host of projects, including the play Blue/Orange, and TV offerings Longford, Holby Blue, and the sitcom Rev, which can be seen on BBC2.



60 SECONDS WITH ... JIMMY AKINGBOLA

REV IS A LOT OF FUN. HOW WOULD YOU DESCRIBE IT FOR NEWCOMERS?
A lot of people try to compare it to The Vicar Of Dibley, but I think it's more real and naturalistic, and it's got that The Office or Thick Of It feel.

THE SHOW HAS ATTRACTED A GREAT CAST HASN'T IT?
Oh yeah. Tom Hollander is such a great actor, and Olivia Colman... I was doing a reading and thought: "Oh my God, that's Simon McBurney (award-winning star of Body Of Lies and The Last King Of Scotland) over there!". Colin Salmon's in it as well and Hugh Bonneville. Honestly, they've got them all.

WAS IT A NICE CHANGE FROM WORKING ON GRITTIER OFFERINGS SUCH AS HOLBY BLUE?
Yeah, it was a really nice change. When we were auditioning I thought this is an amazing character. I just thought there was so much I could bring to it.

OF COURSE YOU'RE NO STRANGER TO SITCOMS HAVING WORKED ON THE CROUCHES AND ROGER ROGER.
Yeah, when I started out in TV my first stuff was comedy. I do like these sorts of characters, to build on them and create something out of nothing, so it's nice to go back to comedy, and good comedy as well with good writing. And it's set in my neck of the woods, east London.

Blue lease of life

CHANGE: Sandi Thom has a fresh image

By JEMMA HUMPHREYS

Her days producing chart topping pop hits may be behind her, but singer Sandi Thom couldn't be happier.

The 28-year-old's career started back in 2005 when she was signed up after her three-week 'tour' — via a webcam in the basement of her London flat — was viewed by 10,000 people.

Sandi's debut single I Wish I Was A Punk Rocker (With Flowers In My Hair) went straight to the top of the charts, quickly followed by her number one album Smile... It Confuses People.

But her image and sound brought about a lot of mixed opinion and, after three years in the limelight, Sandi and Sony parted ways.

The sexy Scottish singer has spent the past 12 months working on new material and now a brand new Sandi Thom has emerged. She's found that being a blues babe suits her better than punk rocker, and she's swapped the flowers in her hair for an electric guitar.

Sandi has been in demand at festivals all over Europe, but she is most excited about her appearance at the Great British R&B Festival in Colne next month, because she might get to meet her hero Peter Green.

"I got into that era of music with my very first band," she said. "We did a lot of Fleetwood Mac covers. I was only 14 and the others were in their 30s.

"To me Peter Green is a living legend. I'd love to get him on stage with me. That would be so cool. I've heard he's quite shy and I'd love to meet him and have a chat and maybe play together behind the scenes too.

"I'm really looking forward to Colne. Festivals like these are so much fun because the crowds are always better. They are there to let their hair down and have a good time."

● See Sandi Thom play the International Stage at The Great British R&B Festival on Saturday, August 28. Festival tickets on 01282 661234.
